HANLEY-MOORE SALARY BOOST FIGHT LOOMS MONDAY NIGHT

Battle May Occur at Adjourned Meet of Council.

VOTE DISPUTE
Appropriation Legislation is Listed for Discussion.

Fight over proposals to increase the salaries of Municipal Judge J. C. Hanley and Service-Safety Director J. W. Moore may be resumed at an adjourned meeting of city council Monday night, when the saloons will consider 1928 appropriation legislation.

Under the ordinance, Hanley's salary, now totaling $4,000, is to be increased to $5,000, the city paying $600 of the additional compensation, while Moore's check, now $1,800, is to be raised to $2,400. The city now pays $1,800 of the salary received by the judge, the remaining $2,200 being paid by the county and Liverpool township.

There is a dispute as to the actual proceedings of council last Monday night. The judgeship pay boost was placed on first reading by a 4 to 3 vote, and suspension blocked. The service-safety director's salary ordinance, according to Clerk A. G. Shone's records, was also placed on first reading, the vote being unanimous, and then, through a change of line-up, suspension was blocked. Three members of council, however, contend that the Moore pay proposal was defeated on first reading.

The showdown, which will occur either Monday night or at the regular session on February 6, will take place on the question of approval of the clerk's minutes. At the same time question of second reading of the municipal judge's ordinance will be debated.

[The opinions expressed in this column are strictly those of Mr. Brisbane and not necessarily in consonance with the policies of The Review-Tribune.]

ELKHART, Ind., Jan. 20.—AFTER a rainy morning in Chicago, this written on the Twentieth Century, bound east through rainy Indiana.

Some Chicago citizens worry needlessly about Chicago's crime news. The news nearly always tells of criminals killing other criminals, a cause for rejoicing, not grief.

This morning attention turns to Gangster Jack Guzik, chief lieutenant for Scarface Al Capone, now resting in Florida.

In Capone's absence foolish Harry Fuller, twenty-eight years old, from South Bend, Indiana, organized a hijacking crew, held up and robbed Capone bootleg wagons.

Such things cannot be tolerated, so Mr. Guzik kidnapped Harry Fuller and two of his assistants, Joseph Gaziando, aged eighteen, and Joseph Fasso, aged twenty-one. All three were "taken for a ride." Fuller and Fasso thrown out at one place. Gaziando at another, all dead, of course.

When weasels kill rats or gangsters kill gangster, the good should rejoice. Let Chicago and other cities burdened with crime problems ask this question:

How can you expect to deal adequately with criminals through your police and detective forces when profits on bootlegging enable criminals to pay policemen and detectives five times as much as the city pays them?

A Chicago chief of police testified that more than half his men were engaged in bootlegging.

Chicago, growing with extraordinary rapidity, solving its traffic and other problems more expeditiously and efficiently than any other city, sets an example to the rest of the country.

And the big State of Illinois, issuing $100,000,000 of State bonds in addition to $33,300,560 county bonds for hard roads, has nearly 6,000 miles of such roads. These figures are printed to oblige Messrs. J. H. Forrest and James P. Bicket, proud Chicago citizens.

Earnest men and women write "Why do you choose capital punishment? Isn't hanging or electrocution too good for a vile murderer? How can you frighten murderers if you don't kill them?"

EAST LIVERPOOL AND LISBON ENTER ORATORICAL CONTEST

Officials of the East Liverpool and Lisbon high schools today formally accepted the invitation of the East Liverpool Review to enter the international oratorical contest in which students of secondary high schools under the age of 19 years will compete.

Heads of the schools at Wellsville, Midland, Chester, Newell and Salsville have also been asked to select representatives for the contest, which is being sponsored in Ohio by the Brush-Moore newspapers.

Cash prizes, totaling $150, will be awarded the winners in the East Liverpool district contest—$75 for first place, $50 for second place and $25 for third place. Winners of the elimination contests in the various schools will compete in East Liverpool.

The subjects upon which the students may prepare their orations are "The Development of the Constitution" or "The Present Significance of the Constitution."

Winner of the East Liverpool contest will go to Canton where he or she will compete with winners of similar contests which are being sponsored by other Brush-

Moore newspapers, which include the Canton Repository, the Steubenville Herald-Star, the Marion Star and Salem News.

The Review will defray all the expenses of its district champion to Canton for the state elimination contest. All the expenses of the state champion to Troy, N. Y., for the zone contest also will be defrayed by the Brush-Moore newspapers and if the Ohio champion continues to win, his or her, expenses also will be defrayed.

All Expenses Paid.

In other words, once the orator wins in a given newspaper's territory, any future expense incurred will be defrayed either by The Review or the Brush-Moore newspapers.

INCENDIARIES FIRE HOUSE TWICE

APPLY TORCH TO RUBBISH IN OLD DWELLING

Firemen Answer Two Calls From East Eighth Street.

BLAZE CHECKED

Jesse Terrence Hurt in Fall Thru Trap Door.

Incendiarism is suspected in two fires which broke out in an abandoned dwelling, said to be owned by the Dresden Pottery company, in East Eighth street, yesterday afternoon.

Third Attempt of Firebugs.

The first fire occurred at 12:45 o'clock when firemen extinguished a burning pile of rubbish in one of the rooms. The second call was received at 2:15 o'clock, when a fire was discovered in the center of the floor. The first blaze was extinguished with a few buckets of water, but firemen were forced to use a line of hose when called to the house the second time.

The house has been unoccupied for several years. Firemen claim that an attempt to burn the structure was made last summer.

Fireman Jesse Terrence wrenched his back when he fell through a trap door in the floor of the house while fighting the blaze. He was taken to his home where he was attended by Dr. McCutcheon. His place at the Central fire station is being filled temporarily by Clem Dawson, substitute fireman.

GALE GRIPS AS MERCURY FALLS

No Gas Shortage Despite Near-Zero Temperatures.

A northwest gale, accompanied by snow flurries, held East Liverpool in its grip today while the mercury fell to near-zero levels.

Automobile traffic was reduced to a minimum. The light snow which fell during the night and early this morning made traveling without chains dangerous on the hillside streets.

Thermometers in the hilltop sections registered from three to five degrees above zero at 6 o'clock this morning, while in the downtown district the average temperature was seven above.

Thomas H. Stephens, superintendent for the Manufacturers Light & Heat company, reported the gas pressure to be strong and no reports of a shortage had been received. Coal dealers said orders heavy but declared that all demands were being met.

Relief from the cold wave is promised Sunday by the weather man.

Explosion Reported.

No preparations were made for the voyage and so quickly did the hospital ship clear a large number of the crew was left ashore.

Naval authorities refused to verify or deny reports of a naval accident at sea.

A report generally circulated was that a submarine had run aground and that an explosion had followed. This was reported to have occurred during the maneuvers off the coast.

BLACKSTONE, FAMOUS MAGICIAN, COMES TO STRAND THEATRE MONDAY

Blackstone, famous magician, now of paraphernalia taxing the capacity on his annual tour, who will play an engagement at the Strand theatre for one week beginning Monday, shows proficiency in every branch of magic. His mysterious range from feats of digital dexterity to wonderful scenic and electrical effects. The mechanical marvels presented are varied with amusing tricks, while in a serious vein he presents hair raising experiments of a psychic nature—even to the apparent materialization of "spooks."

In upholding his prestige as a "Master Magician," Blackstone has spread no expense or effort. A huge array of paraphernalia taxing the capacity of a seventy foot baggage car is utilized in the production of his huge effects, and every principle of stage craft finds in his elaborate program a fair-sized room in which was a down-at-the-heel piano that had been thumped until it cried. Sheet music, professional copies, were piled everywhere. There were some dusty chairs, and a table lane with more music.

The floor was worn smooth and shiny by countless feet that had danced upon it. On the walls were autographed photos of vaudeville performers who had sung Levett's songs or were grateful to the Jewish boy for past favors. All of them had words of affection scrawled across them. Roy Lane's photo was there and one of Billie Moore.

Vaudeville teams, without the means to hire rehearsal rooms, were often to be seen rehearsing an act or running over a new number in Levett's back room. The piano was constantly going and the tap, tap, tap of soft-shoe dancers kept time with the tappest, tap, tap of Levett's typewriter. It warmed the Jewish boy's heart to hear those acts in the making. Songs rose up in him. Whole operas of his race. Themes bigger than himself. He would hum, sentimentally, and sometimes there would be tears in his eyes.

He was seated at his desk reading a letter, that Thursday afternoon, when a tall shadow fell on the glazed glass of his hall door, and he saw the shadow of a hand raised, and an authoritative knock followed.

"Come in," said Mose, pleasantly, and Roy Lane flung back the door, posing a moment to make an effective entrance. He stepped in, hand stretched out, and all smiles. "How are you, Mose?"

"Can't complain, Roy."

"Roy looked around. 'Billie ain't come in yet, huh?'"

"No."

"She's gotta be more punctual," he said, sitting on the edge of Levett's desk. "I'll have to give the kid a good stiff talkin' to."

"Yes, you will!" smiled Mose, folding up his letter and tipping back in his chair. "I know the kind of a talkin' you'll give her."

Lane grinned self-consciously; took off his new hat and twirled it on the tip of his middle finger. "Did you watch us rehearse the other day, Mose?" he asked.

"A little bit."

"Don't you think she's comin' along, O. K.?"

"Yes, I do," considered Levett, "but to be perfectly honest with you, Lane, she needs a lot more work before she'll be ready for that big time you're always talking about."

Lane pursed his lips, contemplative. "Oh, I don't know. She's got the routine an' patter down pretty good now. All she needs is actual experience—contact with an audience. Up at the Paradise she gets a little of that, but not in the right way. One of six weenies—no chance for her there."

Smiling again, Levett looked at Lane, searchingly. "Kinda fallen for her, ain't you, Roy?" His voice was low-pitched and romantic like the pitch and tempo of his sentimental ballads.

Rising from his perch on the desk, Roy strutted up and down the room, still twirling his hat. "I never allow my feelin's to interfere with my art Mose—never! Billie's just workin' in the act with me, see?"

"Sure, I understand. I was only kiddin' you," interrupted Mose Levett, face twisted into sudden seriousness. "That's the right spirit, Lane. What time did you expect her?"

SHOE FACTORY SIGN WAGE PACT

HAVERHILL, Mass., Jan. 21.—Thirty independent shoe factories here today renewed the 1927 wage scale and 1,500 of the 7,500 strikers returned to their benches. The strike was in protest to a wage cut.

Forty-eight factories—12 independent and 36 members of the Manufacturers' association—continued to refuse to sign the old wage scale. Labor leaders said that the threat by three factories to move was "a bluff."

CHAPTER 6.

Mose Levett had an office in the Sure-fire House of Hits, song publishers. He was a short and slight little boy with a bright face and a head of tight, curly hair. Energy and ambition, coupled with regard for his fellow man, radiated from every fibre of his body. His bright eyes sparkled with the humor and wisdom of his race.

He had composed some Blue songs and a couple of sentimental ballads, "My Rose of the World," and "Mother's Girl," and two Dixie numbers. His name was on his own office door, and behind his office he had access to a fair-sized room in which was a down-at-the-heel piano that had been thumped until it cried. Sheet music, professional copies, were piled everywhere. There were some dusty chairs, and a table lane with more music.

The floor was worn smooth and shiny by countless feet that had danced upon it. On the walls were autographed photos of vaudeville performers who had sung Levett's songs or were grateful to the Jewish boy for past favors. All of them had words of affection scrawled across them. Lane grinned self-consciously; took off his new hat and twirled it on the tip of his middle finger. "Did you watch us rehearse the other day, Mose?" he asked.

"We made a date for three." Roy consulted his watch. "It's twenty-five after now. She'll be right along any minute, I guess."

"That's all right, but I'm having Kitty West and Eddie Frank in here at four-ten. They want to try over a new number," Mose explained.

Lane looked toward the hall door anxiously. "She ought to be here, unless something could have happened to her." A frown appeared between his eyes. He had just thought of some one who had been weighing on his mind lately. Could Billie have thrown over this date to go out with that Crandall guy—that butter and egg man from Florida? Huh! Butter and egg man! Florida! Roy Lane had his suspicions about that guy. It's time she was here. She was only an innocent little kid. She wasn't on to the Broadway game. Yes, it was up to him to get her into that big time act as soon as possible. Big time was her right atmosphere. Swell theatres like the Palace—association with big people like Frisco, not greasy Greeks like Nick, and other big four flushers, not to mention names. Yes, sir, it was up to him.

But there was no use showing Mose Levett how he felt about Billie. He turned back from the hall door, and said carelessly, "Of course, if she loses interest I can always get somebody else. There's a lot of jakes I know who are just dyin' to get into a sure thing like this. They're wishin' Billie would die or something, right this minute." He winked at Levett. "Well, you know how broads are, Mose."

"Sure," said Mose, returning the wink. Just then the glazed door was blotched by another shadow, short and slender, and another knock, although a timid and fluttery one, was heard. "That's her now, I guess," said Levett, and Lane sprang to open the door.

Vaudeville Act Shares Honors With Constance Talmadge Picture, "Venus of Venice."

Texas Comedy Four, vaudeville entertainers whose quartet working on a spiritual, will share stage honors at the American theatre three days, commencing Monday, with the Constance Talmadge picture, "Venus of Venice."

The silver sheet offering depicts life of an American art student in Venice and is acclaimed Miss Talmadge's cleverest comedy-romance.

There is little opportunity for comfort or relaxation in Miss Talmadge's portrayal of the "Water Rat," a daredevil canal rascal of Venice, for she is plunged from one existing escapade into another until all possibilities of mischief seem to have been exhausted.

She dives from a bridge, landing unwittingly, in the passing gondola of a visiting American. She swims under water to sink another gondola and leave its burden of police floundering in the murky waters of the canal. She makes a thrilling dive from a balcony to escape an unwelcome suitor. She makes a spectacular "human fly" climb up the wall of a hotel. She leads the police a merry chase through a series of hotel rooms, discarding her wet, tattered garments as she goes and emerging, finally, including new buildings and switchboard apparatus will soon be cut into service at Warwood and Weirton. An addition to the Wheeling building is under way. Central office equipment, included in the program for West Virginia, are additions to the long distance switchboards at Fairmont, additional line equipment in the Capital office at Charleston and in the Wooddale office at Wheeling.

Eight railways are being built in Spain.

Houston and Harmony

That's the battle cry of the Democrats following the love feast at their Jackson Day dinner in Washington, and Chairman Clem Shaver of the National Committee has started in with a zip to get things set for the convention in the Texas city.

(International Newswire)

Her portrayal of "Carlotta," judging from its reception, is the most entertaining of all her screen efforts. The characterization blends feminine charm, roguery, whimsicality, and other appealing qualities in such a manner that while the little "Water Rat's" main ambition is snatching purses, she cannot help stealing hearts as well.

Aviation And Good Sense

Three times Clarence Chamberlin and Roger Williams started up in a Bellanca airplane to try to make a new endurance record. Twice mechanical defects developed which forced them down. Once a sleet storm ended their attempt in less than four hours.

The purpose has now been temporarily abandoned, to await favorable weather.

Meanwhile the National Aeronautic association has decided to abandon plans for trans-Atlantic test flights next summer. The board of governors of the association had been discussing plans for one more round trip flights, by different routes, in planes equipped with the latest safety devices. A large appropriation was planned to build the planes and to establish rescue stations at Harbor Grace, the Azores and the south coast of Ireland.

Now they agree that the results to be gained, even if the flights were successful, would not warrant the effort and cost and risk. There are other fields more important to the advancement of aviation than crossing the North Atlantic this year.

The public, disheartened by all the tragic failures of the past summer and fall, will welcome this news. It still rejoices and is grateful for the successful flights, but it is more than willing to have sureness and safety carried considerably further before other similar flights are tried.

Useful Canals

Now and then statistics become interesting because they suddenly present a neglected fact in a new and helpful light. The recently published comparative figures concerning the Panama canal, the Suez canal and the Sault Ste. Marie canals do this.

The first named of these great waterways cost more than $300,000,000 to construct. The second cost around $127,000,000. The third, including both the Canadian and the American construction work, cost about $23,000,000.

In 1926 the Panama canal carried 26,600,000 tons of cargo freight; in 1925 the Suez canal carried 26,700,000 tons. The Soo canals, in 1926, carried 84,292,340 tons of freight, although closed by ice about three months of the year.

The Great Lakes are there, along many miles of our northern boundary. We learn in geography days that they are tremendously important. Yet we forget just what they mean to the whole country economically. And many of us have never thought as much as we should about what it would mean to enlarge their usefulness by the proposed outlets to the sea through the St. Lawrence river and perhaps down the Mississippi to the Gulf.

Small Change

It does look as if a thrifty observer of coins and customs is right when he laments that the American nickel is in danger of becoming obsolete.

It used to be our most common and useful coin, if we except the cent. The latter is now useful only for buying newspapers. Will the former come to the same humble end?

Think of the things we used to get for a nickel—ice cream soda, street car rides, shoe-shines, sandwiches, smokable cigars, and cups of coffee, to mention only a few of the commonest. Now all of these have risen, most of them into the ten-cent class—all except the cup of coffee, which is now rapidly slipping upward to join the others.

There seems to be a sort of fatality about coins, especially small coins. They determine prices. There is seldom any stopping place between a nickel and a dime. And the present tendency is to make them all dimes, including small tips. People feel ashamed now to give a nickel tip for any little service.

In England the "threepence," equal to six of our cents, has long been the virtual equivalent of our dime, because it was the smallest silver coin in common use, and convenient to handle. Thus in England things could be got for six cents which cost 10 cents here. Similarly in Germany the ten-pfenning piece, resembling our five-cent piece and worth two and one-half cents, served the same purpose as the American nickel. But such foreign coins are probably grown too petty now to command respect in their own countries, like our own poor little pennies and nickels.

When will the bottom drop out of our dime, too, and make the quarter our unit of small change?

Deer And Men

Jack Miner, Canadian naturalist and woodsman, tells his fellow-countrymen something that surprises them. They have been lamenting the disappearance of their deer, and have attributed it to the encroachment of civilization. Not so, says Miner.

It is wolves, not men, that destroy the deer herds. He believes 90 to 95 per cent of the deer born in Ontario are eaten up by wolves. Shoot the wolves, he says, and there will be plenty of deer, for nature lovers and for hunters, too.

He points out that there are often more deer found near settled communities than farther away in the wilderness. He explains that the deer are more afraid of wolves than they are of men, and actually seem to welcome the proximity of men because the men keep down the wolves.

There are plenty of instances in the United States which seem to support this view. How else account for the remarkable multiplication of deer in Massachusetts, Connecticut, and New Jersey, surrounded on all sides by thickly populated sections?

Minds, Open and Closed

"The mentally defective," observes a mind specialist, "are not essentially different from ourselves. Someone has said that the insane are just like ourselves, only more so, and that is a very nice definition. Most of us have our prejudices and fixed ideas. On their side the insane have their delusions, and the line between delusions and prejudices is often a very thin one."

Here is a good reason for adopting a more charitable, understanding and helpful attitude toward mental patients than people usually do. Also reason for guarding against prejudice, or a fixed and inflexible attitude about anything, lest it lead to something worse.

Open-mindedness is a great mental virtue, and a wholesome one as long as the mind isn't kept so wide open that everything goes right through it and out again.

The Toonerville Trolley That Meets All The Trains— By Fontaine Fox

(Fontaine Fox, 1928, The Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

NE WYORK, Jan. 21.—The under-world classes men who have spent ten years or more in prison as "stir bugs." It is the specious theory the monetary of long confinement leaves them with a mental twist of one sort or another.

The police say men who have spent long stretches in prison are far more dangerous to arrest. They know what the tedium of life in a cell means and will not submit to another "rap" without a desperate struggle. They will seldom hesitate to kill when freedom is again in jeopardy.

Men who have endured long terms are instantly spotted by those who have had similar experience. The routine of confinement gives them a certain manner that escapes the casual eye, but the ex-convict will recognize it even in a passing crowd.

Underground communication in prisons has always baffled wardens and other attaches. Even prisoners are unable to explain the phenomena. But when something happens affecting prison life it becomes known in an incredible short time all over the prison, when perhaps not a word has been spoken.

A former Sing Sing convict tells me almost every prisoner knows when there is to be a "break." He does not know why and, of course, never imparts his secret. He also said oldtimers could carry on a sort of telegraphic conversation through steel walls.

Most convicts, when released, go immediately to large cities—preferably New York or Chicago—because they can more easily hide their identity and get into touch more quickly with those with prison past who are sympathetic.

There is a certain Turkish bath in downtown New York which is a point of contact for newly released convicts. If they have determined to continue a life of crime, the resort is also a clearing house of information and a recruiting station for various "mobs."

German comedians, whose conversation explodes like a bottle of pop, are rarely seen any more in New York. The excellent Jack Pearl is about the only one left. Louis Mann, with the passing of Sam Bernard at sea, is the only active survivor of the old guard and he has not appeared this season. Joe Weber and Lew Fields are producing. The late fust shunted many excellent "Dutch" comedians to the background and most of them changed their dialect.

Nothing calls for such smooth running as a theatrical performance. A

Abe Martin Says:

People are no worse 'en they ever wuz. They jest used t' couldn't put th' stuff over with a horse an' buggy, that's all. What becomes o' th' Christmas spirit after Christmas?

HASKIN'S LETTER

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

Facts About City Parks.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 21.—Practically all cities in the United States of 25,000 population or more have parks, according to a report shortly to be made public. Millions of people, however, in small towns have access neither to parks nor playgrounds, and other millions in cities are inadequately provided with these places for relaxation and recreation. Of the cities of 25,000 or more, only 42 come up to the accepted standard of having one acre of parks to a hundred or fewer inhabitants.

In all, 1681 municipalities have an aggregate of nearly 250,000 acres of parks and forests. More than a billion dollars have been expended in acquiring and developing these properties for the people, and a hundred million dollars are spent each year in maintaining them.

The report is the result of a nationwide survey made, at the instance of the National Conference on Outdoor Recreation, by the Playground and Recreation Association of America in cooperation with the American Institute of Park Executives, and two years were devoted to the study. It is to be published with a foreword by President Coolidge in which he says:

"Play for the child, sport for youth, and recreation for adults are essentials of normal life. It is becoming generally recognized that the creation and maintenance of outdoor recreation facilities is a community duty in order that the whole public might participate in their enjoyment."

"This presents a particular challenge to municipal and county administrations. I am hopeful that the results of this study may be widely used to the end that our people, even in cities, may not be deprived of opportunities for wholesome play and recreation out of doors."

President Coolidge addressed the first session of the National Conference on Outdoor Recreation three years ago, and on that occasion emphasized the need of a national recreation policy. The survey which has now been concluded was an essential preliminary to the working out of such a policy.

The Ten Largest Parks. Fairmount Park, Philadelphia, with an acreage of 381, heads the list of ten largest city parks in the United States, as shown by the report. Griffiths Park, Los Angeles, 375 acres, ranks second, and Bidwell Park, Chico, California, 2391 acres, comes third. The others, in their order and with their acreages, are as follows:

Pelham Bay Park, New York City, 1756; Rock Creek Park, Washington, D. C., 1632; New City Park, New Orleans, 1410; Balboa Park, San Diego, 1400; Forest Park, St. Louis, 1371; Swope Park, Kansas City, 1333; and Hubbard Park, Meriden, Conn., 1300.

New York City with 10,178 acres of parks has the largest such area of any American city, but the report states that the park growth of the national metropolis has not nearly kept pace with the growth in population. The big city has but one acre of parks to 553 inhabitants, whereas it should have one acre to 100 or fewer inhabitants according to the standard of which mention has been made.

Minneapolis is cited by the report as the leading park city of major size in the country. With one-half New York's park acreage and but a fraction of its population, Minneapolis has once acre to every 80 inhabitants. "With 132 separate properties," says the report, "Minneapolis has one of the outstanding park systems in the United States, with respect to per capita acreage, types and distribution of the parks, character of the development, and quality of maintenance."

Of the three largest cities in the country, Philadelphia makes the best showing with respect to per capita park acreage. The city boasts more than 8000 acres, including, of course, Fairmount, the largest city park in the United States. Chicago owns less than 5000 acres, but they are exceptionally well developed and maintained and are extensively used for recreation. Chicago is fortunate, also, in having at her outskirts the Cook County Forest Preserve of 31,600 acres.

Speaking of the park acreage of the cities in general, L. H. Weir, who directed the survey, says that all of them are still far from being adequately provided with space. He cites as an example, the cities in the group of 100,000 to 250,000 population, only six of which have park acreage up to the standard ratio.

rected the survey, says that all of them are still far from being adequately provided with space. He cites as an example, the cities in the group of 100,000 to 250,000 population, only six of which have park acreage up to the standard ratio.

City Parks Outside City Limits. The widespread use of the automobile as an adjunct to recreation has led many municipalities to acquire parks outside their limits, and at a considerable distance in several cases. The report shows that 109 cities have already acquired and others are acquiring large outlying parks and forest areas. Phoenix, Arizona, ranks first in the acreage acquired for this purpose, having 15,089 acres in a single tract, while Denver leads in the number of outside properties—44—with a combined acreage of 10,267. Boulder, Colorado, has 11 properties of 6122 acres. Butte, Montana, and Dallas, Texas, are each above the 3000 mark, while Fort Worth, Colorado Springs, Tulsa, and Houston have acreages in excess of 2000. Minneapolis, Oklahoma City, and Spokane each have more than 1000 acres in such outlying areas.

In the matter of playgrounds, New York City has the largest number with 374. Philadelphia has 193; Los Angeles, 173; Chicago, 131; Baltimore, 109; Washington, 108; St. Louis, 97; Boston, 90; Cleveland, 77; and Detroit, 67.

Demand for sunlight and air and recognition of the importance of recreation to the safety, health, and happiness of children are the dominant reasons for the development of modern park and recreation systems, the report states.

The love of beauty and the biological urge to physical activity are the other factors.

After the first wise planning of public squares and commons by the founders of Spanish American cities, by the New England forefathers, by William Penn in Philadelphia, by Ogilthorpe in Georgia, and by others, Americans seemed to have forgotten the necessity of providing open spaces. Their awakening came in the eighties and nineties, and they found then that such spaces within city limits were rapidly disappearing. During the last twenty-five years the movement for parks has proceeded rapidly.

"Now the task for the American people," concludes the report, "is to secure the space in each municipality necessary to permit everybody to get out and live in contact with nature, to enjoy the direct rays of the sun and breathe pure air at least part of the time, and to enjoy activities that will benefit the great fundamental muscles of the body."

CHAPTER XIII.

When the solo flights were more or less successfully completed the flying instruction was divided into two periods of forty-five minutes each. One of these was used for dual and the other for solo practice.

An instructor would attempt to smooth out the rough points in his student's flying and demonstrate the method of going through new maneuvers so that the cadet could be given the opportunity to go up alone and try out the maneuvers for himself.

One of the first lessons was the "three sixty"—so named because its completion required a total change in direction of three hundred and sixty degrees. The cadet would take off and climb to eight hundred of a thousand feet. The higher he went the less difficulty he had in properly completing the maneuver. Then he would fly into the wind directly over a landing "T" in the center of the field. As the plane passed over the "T" he throttled his motor and made a quick bank either to the right or left depending upon his preliminary instructions. The object was to make a complete circle and land without using the motor, bringing the plane to a stop beside the "T".

"One eighty's" were the next requirement and they were probably the cause of more crashes than any other maneuver. They were started in the same manner as the "three sixty," but with the plane heading down wind and at only five hundred feet altitude. They required quick manipulation of controls and a steep bank into the field just before landing.

Next came acrobatics. Loops, spins, barrel rolls, Jenny Immelmans, figure eights, wing-overs and reverses, every one of which each cadet had to master thoroughly during his course at Brooks.

After the first few weeks had passed we became more or less accustomed to life in the cadet detachment, and found a little time now and then to look around the country and even spend a night in San Antonio. Our examinations were purposely given on Saturday morning so that we would not spend the week end studying. It was well known that too much studying affected a cadet's flying and the school schedule was arranged with that in mind.

Our day began with first call at five forty-five and flying started about seven. At eleven we returned to the barracks and from one to five o'clock was devoted to ground school. After supper we could study until bed check at ten o'clock. Plenty of sleep is a necessity for the student pilot, and that fact is recognized nowhere more than in the army schools. Every week night at 10 o'clock the cadet officer of the day checks each bunk and turns in the names of any vacant ones.

Some of our academic subjects, such as aerodynamics and machine guns, required nearly all of our time after school because of approaching examinations, whereas others were comparatively easy and the classroom instruction was sufficient in itself. When we were not studying there were always plenty of other things to attract our attention. If one of the boys left the post, as sometimes happened, he often returned to find his belongings heaped together in the middle of the floor with the army cots piled on top. Several times some cadet returned at midnight to find his equipment carefully transferred and set up on the roof or in the mess-hall. Another one of the favorite sports was to put a hose in the bed of a sound sleeper at 2 a. m., or, if he slept with his mouth open, to fill it from a tube of shaving cream or hair grease.

One of the fellows found a scorpion in his bed and each night for a week thereafter looked through the bedding for another, but finally became careless and forgot to look. His nearest neighbor promptly placed a number of grasshoppers between the sheets near the foot of the bed.

Another evening it was reported that three pole-cats had crawled into a culvert in front of the barracks. For an hour we attempted to smoke them out. The smoke had evidently taken effect, however, and soon three dead pole-cats came floating out from the culvert. The next problem was how to make use of such possibilities. That question was worthy of most careful consideration. After a survey of the barracks we found that our cadet first sergeant was in San Antonio. There was scarcely one of us who did not have a small score to settle with him so we took one of the pillows from his bed and after removing the pillowcase, placed it behind one of the pole-cats. The desired results were then obtained by stepping on the back end of the cat, and after cautiously inserting the pillow back in its case, we replaced it on the first sergeant's bunk. The results were far above expectation.

One by one the occupants of that hay arose and carried their cots outside, until by midnight, when our sergeant returned, there were only a half dozen bunks left, including his own. By that time the odor had permeated through the other bedding, and he was unable to locate the pillow as being the primary cause of offense. Any night for nearly two weeks thereafter our first sergeant and his cot might be located out behind the barracks, and the inspection of quarters, which was to have been held the following morning was postponed indefinitely.

During our last weeks at Brooks life became much less difficult. Most of us who had survived the check pilots and "Benzine Board" were reasonably sure of graduating, and, although our studies were just as exacting as ever, we were able to absorb them much more easily. Also, we had passed our primary flying tests and were making cross-country flights in T. W. 3's, and during formation flying in Voughts. And, finally, we were given a few hours in De Havillands in preparation for the advanced training at Kelly.

We were paired up for the cross-country flights. One of us flew on the way out, while the second acted as observer. On the return flight we traded about, so that each achieved an equal amount of experience, both as an observer and as a pilot. These trips were usually laid out in a triangular course, and included landing at each corner of the triangle.

While on one of our first trips from the home airfield, we landed in the designated field alongside of a road just as a load of watermelons was passing by, so we carried several of them back to the Detachment in our plane.

Always there was some new experience, always something interesting going on to make the time spent in Brooks and Kelly one of the happier years in a pilot's life. The training is rigid and difficult, but there is none better. A cadet must be willing to forget all other interest in life when he enters the Texas flying schools, and he must enter with the intention of devoting every effort and all of the energy during the next twelve months toward a single goal. But when he receives the wins at Kelly a year later he has the satisfaction of knowing that he has graduated from one of the world's finest flying schools.

CHAPTER XIV.

In September, 1924, we were transferred to Kelly. The time we had looked forward to for half a year had arrived. We were through the period of just learning how to fly and were entering a new experience—that of learning how to make use of our flying ability in actual service. We would no longer be floating around the airfield in machines whose only purpose was to stand up under the hard knocks of inexperienced pilots; but we were going to fly planes which had an actual military value in warfare.

We were old cadets and felt the importance of our experience. We were no longer treated as rookies but as potential officers. Before leaving Brooks we had conformed with cadet traditions and allowed groups of our new class to gather around us while we gravely spoke of examinations, check pilots, "Benzine Boards" and "washouts." We thoroughly enjoyed the awe inspired by our seventy-five hours of flying experience.

At Kelly our difficulties set in with renewed vigor. The De Havillands did not maneuver like the training Jennies, and we were required to fly as we had never flown before. If a cadet was not able to handle his ship in a maneuver which was at least equal to the standard, he was usually leading toward home within a week.

We were allowed a few days to become accustomed to flying the new type of plane, then an instructor would go with us to see if our progress had been satisfactory. If so, we were sent to the next stage; if not, we went up with a check pilot.

From landings we went to the "eight" stage, where were assigned two landmarks such as a tree and a haystack several hundred feet apart, and required to do figure eights around them. Then came the spot-landing stage, when we throttled our engine at about a thousand feet and were required to land in a large white circle without using our motor. On this stage we were graded on our take-off, climb, approach, landing, roll, distance from mark and method of handling the ship. In fact at Kelly we were constantly under observation and our only method of relaxation while flying was when the sky was cloudy and we could get above the clouds.

On one occasion we were flying with a low ceiling and the visibility was not very good. In fact it was an ideal day to do the things we were not supposed to. I was hedge-hopping along over the country when I saw another D. H. playing around on my right. I flew over, and after chasing each other around for a while we proceeded to do chandelles, vertical banks, wing-overs, and everything else we could think of; all within a few feet of the ground as the clouds themselves were only about 300 feet high. At last I decided to go up close to the other plane for a little low formation flying, but as I approached I saw that there were two men in the ship and that I had been breaking every rule ever established about low flying with an instructor watching me from another ship. I left that locality with wide-open motor and for several days expected to be called on the carpet before the commanding officer on a washout offense. That instructor must have been a good sport, however, because I never heard from him and never was able to find out who he was.

On another occasion, near the end of my course, I came very near being washed out for something I knew nothing about. I had been practicing landings in an S. E. 5 on one corner of Kelly Field. When my time had expired, I landed on the pursuit stage, but out to be weeds, and it was decided that the damage had been caused by a snake left standing in the corner of Kelly Field where I had been landing, although I had not felt the ship strike anything. The cadet who flew the same part of the field and said that he felt it strike a bump on one of his take-offs, but did not believe any damage had been done. Who was flying the ship made little difference, however, because as long as he had not landed away from the airfield without authority, the slight

It came out of a clear sky. I knew of a number of offenses I had committed, but none of them at that time. I had actually no idea of what the operations officer was talking about.

When school was over I returned to the operations hut and requested an account of the alleged offense. It appeared that the propeller on my S. E. 5 was cracked, and the spread-board broken on the landing gear. The crew chief had reported this, together with a statement that there were corn stalks hanging on the landing gear, and as there was no corn growing on Kelly Field, that was a sure sign that I had landed away from the airfield without reporting the fact. A washout offense. We drove to the pursuit stage and found conditions exactly as stated, except that the corn stalks turned out to be weeds, and it was decided that the damage had been caused by a snake left standing in the corner of Kelly Field where I had been landing, although I had not felt the ship strike anything. The cadet who flew the same part of the field and said that he felt it strike a bump on one of his take-offs, but did not believe any damage had been done. Who was flying the ship made little difference, however, because as long as he had not landed away from the airfield without authority, the slight damage was of no consequence. I had come very close to the "Benzine Board" for an offense of which I knew nothing, but it was probably only the open-mindedness and sense of fair play of the operations officer that kept me from being washed out as a result. Tomorrow's Vogue

Greater Beauty . . . with matchless super six performance

Hudson crowns a long succession of triumphs in the new Super-Sixes which dealers are now showing.

The resources which achieved and led the mechanical possibilities of the day, have been brilliantly employed to create and lead a new mode of beauty, comfort and luxurious appointment.

For Hudson now introduces Tomorrow's Vogue.

As dramatic as the first introduction of the Super-Six principle which set today's standard for motor smoothness and efficiency.

As boldly original as the Coach, which turned the trend to closed car dominance.

As revolutionary as the companion invention to the Super-Six principle, the high-compression motor toward which all builders aim.

With higher, narrower radiator, with vertical shutters, saddle lamps, full crown fenders and low sweeping lines, here is Hudson beauty in gloriously new guise.

And in all models, every value of body and chassis heretofore known, is surpassed. You will agree without hesitation the moment you see them.

A new and glorious thrill is in store for you when you take your first ride.

Three Lines of Bodies—
Two Hudson Chassis

Three lines of Hudson bodies are presented—the Standard, the Custom Designed and the Custombuilt—and two chassis—the 118-inch and the 127-inch.

Millionaire Reporter to Keep Job After Wedding

JOHN BARRY RYAN, JR.

MARGARET D. KAHN

Another marriage that brings together two of the wealthiest and most socially prominent families in the United States is in the offing.

The principals in this blue-blood romance are Margaret D. Kahn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Otto H. Kahn of New York, and John Barry Ryan, Jr., son and heir of the noted millionaire and grandson of Thomas Fortune Ryan.

Following the formal announcement of the engagement, young Ryan was discovered working as a reporter on a Newark (N. J.) paper. Ryan grinned, confirmed the report, announced that he would keep right on at his profession, and then waved would-be interviewers away, telling them that he had to hop out and get on a story that had just "broken."

No date for the marriage has been set. Miss Kahn is 26 and her millionaire-reporter-fiance is just one year older. The bride-to-be's father is head of the powerful financial house of Kahn, Loeb & Co., and long noted for his philanthropies as well as generous subsidies to the musical and theatrical world.

To the thousands of Pilgrims on their way to the Passover-Feast the miracle of the loaves and fishes had an electric and irresistible appeal.

Even His disciples were swept from their feet by a great popular impulse. It was the supreme crisis in the life of Jesus but it was no sooner come than gone. ~ ~

HEFLIN DENIES HE WILL HEAD THIRD PARTY

Fiery Alabamian May Oppose Al Smith at Houston.

STORMS AHEAD

Democrats Fail to "Soft-pedal" Religious Issue.

By William K. Hutchinson.
WASHINGTON, Jan. 21.—A warning of "storms ahead" confronted the Democrats today despite all efforts of leaders to "soft-pedal" the religious issue in the ranks of the party.

A report of a third party fight against Smith and further rumors that Senator Heflin of Alabama would become a candidate against Smith for the Democratic nomination threatens to keep the religious issue alive in Democratic ranks. All hopes of "quieting" Heflin were abandoned. It was believed in senatorial circles he would keep up his anti-Smith attacks from now until congress adjourns for the presidential conventions.

Heflin, when asked about the rumors that he would run on a third party ticket, denied he has any such plans at present.

"I have received a number of requests from western and southern Protestants, urging me to run for the Democratic nomination," said Heflin. "I have also received requests from many Democrats and Republicans who want me to head a third party ticket. I told them all that if I did run for the presidency, it would be in the Democratic convention at Houston."

DIRIGIBLES MAY SPAN ATLANTIC

NEW YORK, Jan. 21.—Trans-Atlantic dirigible service between the United States and Great Britain is only a matter of a comparatively short time.

Within two and one half years, giant, cigar-shaped dirigibles will be speeding over the Atlantic carrying hundreds of passengers in a regular weekly service between London and New York. Six months later an alternate daily service will be in operation.

Within ten years great "trunk routes" will span the high seas, linking by dirigible such cities as New York and London, Berlin and Bombay, San Francisco and Honolulu, Miami and Rio de Janeiro, London and Cape Town, Shanghai and Leningrad—fact all the principal cities of the world.

This interesting prediction was made by Commander D. Burney, British airship constructor and member of parliament, in an interview today.

SARDINO ALIVE, NATIVES REPORT

MANAGUA, Jan. 21.—U. S. marines, who are making steady although slow progress in their infiltration of the Sandista rebel territory, are not meeting with any organized resistance.

Marine headquarters are still without confirmation that General Sandino, rebel leader, has been killed but three natives arriving from the interior have brought out a story that Sandino was severely wounded in the head and knee by bomb attacks from marine aeroplanes last week-end.

These natives said Sandino was under the care of a Mexican physician.

General McCoy will arrive here tomorrow, when it is expected that conferences will be opened in an attempt to settle the tangled political situation regarding the McCoy law for control of the next Nicaraguan elections.

Oratorical Contest

This will include the expenses of a companion, to be either the student's teacher or a parent.

Each school in the competition must have its school champion selected not later than Friday, March 16. The several school orators in each of the zones will then meet at East Liverpool on Friday, March 30, when the elimination of all but the district champion will be carried out.

The district champion, then, will meet the other newspaper champions of Ohio in Canton on Friday, April 27, for selection of the Ohio oratorical champion.

The Ohio champion then will go to Troy, N. Y., on Friday, May 11, for participation in the national semi-finals, and if declared the victor there, will move on to Washington for the national finals on Friday, May 25.

Should the Ohio champion win the national contest, he or she, will return to Washington on October 13, for the international competition.

In the meantime all participants in the national finals will have made a ten weeks' trip to Europe.

10-Minute Oration.

These orations are limited to 10 minutes for presentation. They are delivered by the student precisely as any other orator would deliver them—and in the presence of spectators interested in this type of work within the schools.

They will co-operate to the fullest extent with the school authorities and the students entered in the contest.

The foreign countries to participate in the international contest this year are England, France, Germany, Mexico, Canada, Japan and Cuba.

Yes, hanging is too good, especially for a kidnapping murderer. But hanging and the electric chair, as prison superintendents testify, instead of frightening murderers, make them feel heroic.

Two men kidnapped and murdered little school girls. The first crime was committed in California, where they have capital punishment. The criminal is now in jail, having his picture taken, reading his "fan" mail, not much worried about the hangman, while alienists work over him. His crime was committed more than a month ago.

In Michigan, where they have no capital punishment, Adolph Hotelling, an editor in the church of Owosso, murdered a little girl. Three days after he was caught he was in Marquette prison, to spend the rest of his life at hard labor. Which is the better system?

A. D. Lasker, who ran the Shipping Board, once a young frightfully energetic boy, sitting in the outside office of Lord & Thomas, in Chicago, now even more frightfully energetic, sits in the inside office and owns the place.

He and his wife have just given a million dollars to Chicago University to study the "causes, nature and prevention of degenerative diseases."

Within three hundred years, the average life has increased from thirty to sixty years, but a man of fifty has very little better chance of life than a man of that age one hundred years ago.

Lasker wisely gives money to find out why it is that human beings after fifty break down so quickly.

If the scientists will let him, Lasker should use some of his money in investigating suggestions that medical science would call "all nonsense." All nonsense is what the doctors called the theories of Pasteur, who taught them more than they ever knew before.

A dispatch from Nicaragua says Sandino, the rebel bandit who killed some of our marines, has been killed by a bomb from one of our aeroplanes.

The Nicaragua rebels now know that they have no more chance against United States flying machines than a rabbit has against eagles.

That is satisfactory so far as our Nicaragua fight goes.

But our President, Congress and Army and Navy departments, should remember that several countries in Europe and at least one in Asia exceed us so greatly in air power that they could do to us, if they chose, what we have just done to Sandino.

$75,000 Blaze in Columbus.

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 21.—Sparks from fire in the Columbus Woodwork lag company lumber yards which entailed a loss of $75,000, for a time threatened surrounding residences in the suburbs of Shepard here early today.

The fire originated, in undetermined manner, about 6 o'clock last night. A strong west wind fanned the flames and would probably have spread them were it not for the fact that no buildings adjoin the yard on the east.

Low water pressure, due to the extreme cold, made the work of the firefighters difficult. Though under control, the fire was still burning today. William Slater, owner of the company, said the loss was covered by insurance.

UNION SERVICE IN EAST END SUNDAY NIGHT

Rev. W. T. McCandless at Second Presbyterian Church.

REVIVAL MEET

Large Crowd Hears Sermon in Second U. P. Edifice.

Despite near zero-weather there was a large audience at the Second Presbyterian church, Virginia avenue, last night, this service marking the end of the second week of the union revival campaign by three East End churches.

Rev. W. T. McCandless, pastor of the Second United Presbyterian church, delivered a masterful discourse on "Seeing the Wind." His text was taken from Matthew 14:13: "When he saw the wind he was afraid; and beginning to sink he called out saying, Lord, save me."

When Rev. Frederic A. Dean extended the invitation for the altar call a large number responded. Preaching was preceded by an inspiring song service directed by Rev. G. C. Westlake, pastor of the Pennsylvania Avenue Methodist Episcopal church.

A union service of the young people's societies of the three co-operating churches—Second Presbyterian, Second United Presbyterian and Pennsylvania Avenue Methodist Episcopal—will be held in the first-named church at 6:30 o'clock Sunday evening.

The young people will occupy special section of seats at the evangelistic service following which Rev. Mr. McCandless will deliver his final sermon of the campaign.

In his sermon last night Rev. Mr. McCandless said:

"Our religion is the storm of criticism and the northwestern wind which the church is combating in the gale of worldliness blowing in the opposite direction."

GENEVA BLOCKS KELLOGG PLAN

PARIS, Jan. 21.—The League of Nations—its instrument to preserve world peace—may prove the obstacle in the way of treaties proposed by Secretary of State Kellogg for outlawing war forever.

In its latest note to Washington Foreign Minister Aristide Briand is understood to have informed the United States that France cannot enter unconditionally into a general treaty promising never to fight, because of prior obligations. The obligations are understood to be pledges made under the League of Nations to support each other if an outside power enters upon a war of aggression.

URGE "TEETH" FOR DRY LAW

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21.—A congressional dry movement to make a five-year prison term and a $10,000 fine the maximum penalty for the first violation of the major sections of the Volstead law gathered force today as prominent wets swung in line for the measure.

With the drys out to put new teeth in the law, the wets declared that the drastic penalties would cause a reaction which would sweep away all traces of "dry tyranny."

The bill, proposed by Representative Stalker (R.) of New York, has the backing of the Anti-Saloon league, he said.

ABANDON HOPE FOR TWO AIRMEN

WILMINGTON, N. C., Jan. 21.—Hope faded fast today when no trace of "Miss Shell," the biplane in which Ted Mosell, pilot and Fred Hering, mechanic, took off from Dayton Beach, Fla., Monday in a non-stop flight to New York, was found.

The seaboard from northern Georgia to Delaware was combed in a fruitless search for the missing flyers. Edward F. Schlee and William S. Brock, round-the-world flyers, searched the Carolina and Virginia coast in a flight from Charleston, S. C., to Bolling field.

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKETS

NEW YORK, Jan. 21.—Industrial stocks moved upward in the short session of the market today, under the leadership of the same group of motor, electrical manufacturing, utility and metals stocks that featured Friday's closing rally. Strength was imparted to the market by the favorable week-end industrial and business reports, confirming the revival in steel buying and the increase of employment at strategic industrial centers.

Westinghouse Electric and Hupp Motors forged ahead in the first period under the stimulus of a strong and aggressive buying movement. Westinghouse sold above 37, the highest price for the stock in its present form.

Hupp's rise to above 36 was accompanied by reports of the influx of orders for the new model 8-cylinder cars, and the speeding up of the wheels of production. Montana Power reached a new high at 120 in the lead of the public utility group, and United States Steel commanded a firm market 148.

Bradstreet's weekly survey pointed out increase in operations of the motor car manufacturers, estimating a 20 per cent gain in car output over the same month last year. The steel trade has thus far been the chief beneficiary of the enlarged takings of steel by the automobile industry, but implement and railroad car manufacturers are reported to be increasing bookings for steel and other necessary material.

CHICAGO PAYS ITS TRIBUTE TO COSGRAVE

Irish Free State Leader Takes City by Storm.

"Big Bill" Thompson Booms Greeting to Visitors.

CHICAGO, Jan. 21.—William T. Cosgrave, president of the Irish Free State, took Chicago by storm today.

Thousands gathered in the smoky La Salle street station to greet Chicago's distinguished visitor hours before the Twentieth Century Limited was expected to arrive with his party.

The rocking crescendo of cheers that greeted the president when his train arrived was taken up by waiting thousands who milled about, elbow to elbow, in the big lobby, and by other thousands who stood in Van Buren street in the bitter cold to pay tribute to the fighting Irishman.

Mayor William Hale Thompson of Chicago, was the first to greet President Cosgrave.

"I'm Mayor Thompson and I want to greet you in the name of Chicago," boomed the voice of "Big Bill" through the shouting.

"I have heard a great deal of you, even as far as Ireland," said Cosgrave with a friendly smile as the two men shook hands. "I am indeed glad to meet you."

President Cosgrave, apparently dazzled by the brilliance of his reception, seemed hardly the tenacious bitter fighter of the days when the British empire had a price upon his head when he battled with Free State troops.

BRAVE COLD

"Big Bill" Thompson Booms Greeting to Visitors.

CHICAGO, Jan. 21.—William T. Cosgrave, president of the Irish Free State, took Chicago by storm today.

Thousands gathered in the smoky La Salle street station to greet Chicago's distinguished visitor hours before the Twentieth Century Limited was expected to arrive with his party.

The rocking crescendo of cheers that greeted the president when his train arrived was taken up by waiting thousands who milled about, elbow to elbow, in the big lobby, and by other thousands who stood in Van Buren street in the bitter cold to pay tribute to the fighting Irishman.

Mayor William Hale Thompson of Chicago, was the first to greet President Cosgrave.

"I'm Mayor Thompson and I want to greet you in the name of Chicago," boomed the voice of "Big Bill" through the shouting.

"I have heard a great deal of you, even as far as Ireland," said Cosgrave with a friendly smile as the two men shook hands. "I am indeed glad to meet you."

President Cosgrave, apparently dazzled by the brilliance of his reception, seemed hardly the tenacious bitter fighter of the days when the British empire had a price upon his head when he battled with Free State troops.

Policemen Battle Mob.

Perceiving a twenty-foot banner containing a massive portrait of himself and a welcome in English and Gaelic, Cosgrave smiled.

"Quite an endeavor, isn't it. I must say the likeness flatters me."

Two hundred policemen battled the mob as Cosgrave and Thompson fought their way to waiting automobiles.

Waves of applause greeted the vaillant fighter as the cortege rode down La Salle street toward the city hall.

Green flags and green, white and gold flags, the tri-colored flag of the New Erin, waved in the brisk wintry air as the procession proceeded toward Michigan avenue and the Drake hotel.

President Cosgrave after observing his welcome and the city of Chicago, said:

"Truly this is the wonder city of the world. I thought New York gave me a welcome but Chicago—"

WORLD WAR VET BURNS TO DEATH

FREMONT, O., Jan. 21.—Clarence Allen Michaels, 33, world war veteran, was burned to death in a fire which destroyed his home, near here, early today. An overheated furnace is thought to have caused the fire while Michaels slept, as his charred torso and skull were found in a bed in the debris.

PEACE MARKS HAVANA MEET

HAVANA, Jan. 21.—The rough spots in America's relations with the other Republics of the western hemisphere are rapidly being ironed out in Havana.

Under the skillful but unostentatious guidance of Charles E. Hughes, most of the trouble that threatened to make the Sixth Pan-American conference a fighting affair has been dissipated and today there is every prospect that after four or five more weeks of diplomatic maneuvering, the parley will come to an end with the usual resolutions of non-political character.

JAIL DELIVERY IS FRUSTRATED

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Jan. 21.—Authorities will question the 16 Mahoning county prisoners today as to their attempted jail-break last yesterday.

The attempted escape of the prisoners, who included Oakley Ross and Arthur Hutcherson, alleged confessed slayer of Patrolman Henry Clemens, was frustrated when Sheriff Peter Corli discovered three saws in the cells and the bars of several windows partly sawed through.

200 School Teachers See "Old Ironsides"

Public Instructors and Nuns of Parochial Building Guests of Ceramic Theatre.

Two hundred public and parochial school teachers witnessed the initial showing of the famous picture, "Old Ironsides," depicting the story of the building of the frigate "Constitution" and the early struggles of the American navy against the pirates of the seas, at the Ceramic theatre at 10 o'clock this morning. The picture opens a week's engagement here Monday.

The public school teachers and the Sisters of Mary of Humility, in charge of the St. Aloysius school, were guests of the theatre management.

A patriotic musical program, including the singing of "The Star Spangled Banner," by the Royal Welsh Ladies' choir, and later by the guests, was featured. Music was in charge of the Ceramic theatre orchestra.

WELLSVILLE PASSERS CRUSH CARROLLTON FLOOR TEAMS

KLINCK'S BOYS WIN, 22 TO 5; GIRLS, 60 TO 14

High Squads Roll up Big Scores on Home Court.

EASY VICTORIES

Both School Units Play at Salem Tonight.

Both Carrollton high school floor squads were crushed under decisive scores rolled up last night by Wellsville teams on the local court. Klinck's boys taking the big end of a 22 to 5 count and the Orange sextet turning in a record tally of 60-14.

Despite the absence of two regulars, Center Calhoun, who left the Orange and Black ranks a week ago, and Forward Shea, the Klinck quint had things practically their own way during the main encounter.

Klinck used two complete squads, starting Pacey and Weekly at forwards, Snowden at center, and Terry and Householder at guards. In the second half Alston replaced Snowden at the pivot post and the latter moved up to his regular job at forward. Fisher and Shanks also got into the game at forwards and Nelson and Deuval were used on the guard positions in the closing periods.

Two field goals represented the total scoring done by Carrollton from scrimmage. These two markers and a single foul shot gave them their five-point total.

Alston developed a scoring streak in the second half, tossing in four two-pointers from the floor and holding his own opponent scoreless. Weekly and Pacey each contributed a pair of field goals to the total.

Both high school squads will go to Salem tonight for games with the boys' and girls' teams of that school. The Red and Black teams are expected to provide much more difficult opposition than that the locals encountered last night.

NINE MIDLAND HIGH GRADUATES GET DIPLOMAS MONDAY

CLASS NIGHT OBSERVED WITH COMEDY HERE

American Elm Tree to be Left as Memorial.

HONOR SPONSOR

Dr. G. H. Alderman, Pittsburgh, Will Speak.

Nine Lincoln high school seniors, members of the January class of 1928, who will receive their diplomas at formal commencement exercises Monday night, opened graduation activities last night with production of a two-act comedy in Lincoln auditorium before an audience of 400 parents and friends.

"Conspiracy," written and staged by the class, under faculty supervision, held a laugh in every line.

At the close of the production, Gayle Chaffin announced that the class will leave as a memorial to its alma mater an American elm tree to be planted in the school grounds next March.

Chaffin also presented a silk umbrella to Miss Grace Kramer, class sponsor.

Dr. Grover H. Alderman, dean of school of education of Pittsburgh, will be the commencement speaker. His subject will be "Education for a Changing Civilization."

Class members are: President, Alfred Susie; secretary, Joseph Hedish; treasurer, Glenn Ashenhart; historian, Velma Strohm; Gayle Chaffin, Simon Gottlieb, Josephine Johnson, Nicholas Koss and Ernest Smith.

Josephine Johnson is the first commercial course graduate.

From the time the play opened with the reading of the "news" in the East Liverpool Review that Lincoln high school had been closed until the unusual trial in the second act, the play held the interest of the audience.

Charged with trying to escape "Lincoln Institution" without being fully prepared to enter the world, the January class of 1928 was arraigned in a court of justice and eventually vindicated itself by proving that it had spent wisely its four years in the school.

Gayle Chaffin, who filled the roll of donor in the closing scenes of the burlesque took stage honors.

Josephine Johnson, on the witness stand, proved herself innocent of the charge placed against the class, by reciting a poem written by herself and dedicated to Lincoln high school.

Ernest Smith, another witness, sang two selections.

Glenn Ashenhart read a chemical analysis of the brain of the average senior.

Gayle Chaffin read a supposedly sworn copy of the faculty's record of the class.

Viewed activities of the class since it entered Lincoln high four years ago.

Simon Gottlieb played the part of a witness in defense of the class.

'FOOL'S DEATH' REV. J. B. EDIE'S SERMON TOPIC

Value of Revivals Emphasized at Orchard Grove Church.

SPECIAL MUSIC

"Church Night" Will be Observed on Monday.

"When official boards and lay members of congregations fail to emphasize the need and value of revivals then the standard of their christianity will wane," asserted Rev. Joseph B.
Edie, of Youngstown, in the Orchard Grove Methodist Episcopal church last evening. His subject was "The Fool's Death."

"The Methodist church was born in a revival and has been maintained by
that have drawn many into it from the outside world," he said. "It will be a sad day for it or any other denomination if such evangelical efforts are dispensed with. I have no patience with a certain tendency by many to stress only personal viza-tion or solicitation in going after those without the kingdom."

Following a song service directed by Mr. Charles A. Price, with Mrs. A.
M. Burns as organist, Clarence Smith sang, "The Sweetest Song I Know."
Special services will be emphasized at all meetings next week, Rev. Mr.
Conn, the pastor, announced. These will include "Church Night" on Monday when the entire congregation is expected to attend; "Community Night" on Tuesday which is designated to attract all on the Northside who may not be allied with the denomination; "Sunday School Night" on Wednesday when teachers and pupils of the congregation's Bible study period will occupy seats together; "Family Night" on Thursday when home units of the church will sit as such and "Young People's Night" on Friday.

To the family having the largest attendance on Thursday evening Rev.
Mr. Conn announced a gift would be presented by him.

No service will be held this evening.
Both Rev. Mr. Conn and Rev. Mr.
Edie, it was revealed, will preach at the Sunday services, the former in the morning on an evangelistic theme and the latter in the evening on the subject of "Hell." Rev. Mr. Edie returned to Youngstown immediately after last evening's service and will preach to his own congregation in the morning.

"Few ministers of the present day elect to speak often on 'Hell,' Rev.
Mr. Edie said in speaking of Sunday night's service. "But it is a theme that should be discussed more frequently and I shall unhesitatingly do so on this occasion."

It was also announced that Clarence Smith, the North Side singer, would again sing on Sunday evening.

"The North Side Methodist Episcopal church should be the strongest unit of the denomination in the city," declared Rev. Mr. Conn in his announcement. "I have a vision of it as such if all those in its proximity should be associated with it. It is one thing to talk of Jesus Christ; it is another to be consecrated in doing his work."

"The best revival I ever had was in my own church in Youngstown," Rev.
Mr. Edie averred. "And I believe this was due to a member of my official board suggesting at the outset that its personal should meet together in prayer. The gathering was a delightful scene and the service a beautiful one. Then grew a concern for souls when the responsibility of leadership upon them. Such a departure must come about here to bring about the results that are obviously necessary in the work of this church."

Highs Defeat Bellaire, 40-33; Play East Palestine Tonight

Foul Shots Decide Game For Potters

Blue Outscores Lewis Quint in Every Period Save Third.

BELLAIRE, Jan. 21.—Outscoring Lewis' Red and Black quint in every quarter save the third and developing a sensational foul shooting streak, Coach Joe Hurst's East Liverpool high school team last night defeated Bellaire here by a score of 40 to 33.

With field goal honors even, the deciding issue was the matter of field goals and the Hurst charges produced in a way that left little to be desired. Thirteen times the referee sent the Blue and White to the foul line and 12 times out of the 13, the candidates

Set For Unbeaten Palestine Five

East Liverpool high school passers will clash with the undefeated East Palestine quint tonight at East Palestine. The Brown and White has registered eight wins to date and the girls' team boasts a similar record.

The locals will make the trip to East Palestine in Sturgis coaches. Selected for the occasion sent the leather swishing through the net. In 14 free tosses at the netting, the home quint was able to make only five good throws.

Guard Crawford, of East Liverpool, led his mates in the matter of foul shooting, making five out of six attempts. The Hurstmen opened the first quarter with a flashing attack that netted them 14 points, Felt, Withrow and English collaborating in the scoring attack. Bellaire trailed by four points at the initial intermission.

The visitors piled on nine more counters in the second period while Bellaire was getting six and the score, consequently, gave the Potters a 23 to 13 edge at the half.

Bellaire rallied in the third period to score 10 points against East Liverpool's eight but their attack fell off again in the concluding quarter as the Blue and White drove on for another nine points.

Newell Teams Drop Double At Wellsburg

Brooke Countians' Offense Too Tough for Visitors.

WELLSBURG, W. Va., Jan. 21.—Flashing a bewildering passing attack which Newell, W. Va., high school basketball five could not solve, the flashy Wellsburg quint added another scalp to their string last night at the Wellsburg gym, by a score of 42-13.

The stellar playing of Lazer and Turley was the main factor in the Wellsburg win. In the preliminary the Wellsburg girls defeated the Newell girls by a 24-10 score.

In the boys game Coach Fuccey held his star, Harry Davis, in reserve since he has been a little under the weather lately and started his brother Henry instead.

Midland Five Books Strong Canton Squad

Al M'Glashan, Wooster, Heads Ohioans' Invasion.

Sherers Soda Grills, Canton's representative road team, headed by Al M'Glashan, last year Wooster college luminary, whose playing in the Tri-State amateur tournament here last March was the source of much comment, meets the Midland Collegians at Midland next Thursday night.

This club, one of the best known in the eastern part of the state, has been meeting some of the best teams in the Tri State district and has on its roster many well known Canton players.

Other well known floor stars on the squad are Van Nostran, Akron U.; Sheets and Combs, a pair of tricky ex McKinley High forwards, Red McKibbin, slugging infielder of the Massillon Acahion baseball team, and also a star at McKinley High, a few years ago, Johnny Jacobs, Ohio State star and Adair, also McKinley High topper. Jimmy McCurdy, who has been on championship Canton teams for the past several seasons also is a member of the team.

Rex McConnell, former local sports promoter is handling the business affairs of the Canton club this year and says his team will furnish the steel-town tossers with plenty of opposition.

The Sherers come here from New Comerstown, O., a jump of almost 100 miles, where they play on Wednesday night.

Hudkins Too Rugged For Low Tendler

Short Route Saves Philadelphia From Knockout.

By Davis J. Walsh. NEW YORK, Jan. 21.—Too rough, said the gent who had used a nail file for a tooth brush. Too rough, echoed Lew Tendler, shrewd, cagey survivor of some fourteen embattled years in the prize ring and he was referring to neither nail files nor tooth brushes. For, be the former ever so rough and the latter ever so bristly, they are so much velour in comparison with Ace Hudkins, the Neanderthal man from Nebraska.

As the writer saw Hudkins at Madison Square Garden, he was too rough, too tough and too just about everything for the entire welterweight division. He hasn't beaten Joe Dundee, the champion, and he won't—until he meets him. Dundee is a fairly representative champion but there have been only two battling Nelsons known to boxing and the other one is Hudkins. It's difficult to see how he can miss the title, if given a break.

The only break that Tendler got last night was that the bout was scheduled for ten rounds. Eleven might have been too much and fifteen would have been out of all reason. Tendler, now hovering about the near edge of the middleweight division, but trained to a whisper, barely lasted to the bell in the seventh and ninth rounds. A less gifted man, and there are only about ten thousands of them, would have folded up under the veneering Tendler received, but Lewis is as game as he is good and he proved it in the final round when he fought the Ace to a standstill and had his yellow head bouncing back on his shoulder blades from left hooks to the chin.

Drops Tendler Once. But a flash is an ephemeral thing, at best, and Tendler's last round rally was only a flash after all. You can't hurt Hudkins with a punch on the goatee any more than you can pierce iron with a hat pin. Two more rounds might have finished Tendler; five more certainly would have done so.

As it was, Hudkins carried every round except the third and the tenth, dropping Tendler cleanly for a count of eight in the seventh round with a left to the rotunda and a right cross to the jaw. Too much enthusiasm for the kill stopped Hudkins from getting it in this round just as too much caniness on Tendler's part achieved the same result in the ninth, in which Hudkins staggered his man into the ropes with a left and right and later boomed a right to the body with a degree of sincerity that really seemed too much for human flesh to withstand. Tendler was so nonchalant about it, in fact, that he walked very determinedly to a neutral corner.

But then he wasn't expected to beat the Hudkins who must come in at 147 pounds to get his chance at the title and ace was all of 2 1/2 pounds over the class limit last night.

Hudkins Beats Bell. In consequence he was a stronger, more durable Hudkins than ever before and he didn't lose any of his speed or his will to win in carrying the extra poundage. Between rounds, he leaned forward in his chair, ready to spring at his victim with the bell. He actually beat the gun in the ninth and was forced to stand in his corner until official decorum had been thoroughly placated.

Tendler made a game and interesting fight of it all the way but stopped too many rights with his chin the early rounds and absorbed too many gloves with his torso as the fight wore on to do him any particular good. He did take the third by hooking a lot of lefts to the body and jaw, and some might have given him a stand off in the fourth because Hudkins was warned for hitting low.

But, on the whole, it was strictly a one-way procession and Hudkins was the drum major; also the bass drummer. Tendler had a very important role. He was the drum itself.

AT SAN FRANCISCO.—Lefty Cooper of Memphis was declared winner over Roy Williams, Chicago negro, when the latter was disqualified for low punching.

Charlie Miller outpointed Bud Thomas, (4).

Eastern Ohio League is Cut To Four Clubs

Remaining Quartet Withdraws From 1928 Roster.

COSHOCKTON, O., Jan. 21.—The Eastern Ohio Baseball League, which have but four teams on its roster this year, it was decided at the circuit's annual re-organization meeting held here recently.

The members of the league, it was announced, will be Coshocton, Zanesville, Twin Cities and New Philadelphia.

The league, said to be one of the fast semi-pro loops in the middlewest, had eight teams in its circuit last year. Bellaire, Cambridge, Dennison, and Uhrichsville withdrew their teams however, this year.

At the meeting, Carl S. Siegrist, Coshocton, was re-elected president; Robert Rutledge, New Philadelphia, vice president; and Walter Sherrets, Coshocton, secretary-treasurer. "Turk" Kelly, Zanesville, and W. R. Carnahan, Twin City, were appointed members of a committee to draft a playing schedule for the 1928 season.

800 Athletes Meet in East

NEW YORK, Jan. 21.—Leading athletes of Chicago, Boston, Philadelphia and Washington will meet the cream of the metropolitan district in the Brooklyn college games at the Thirtieth Regiment Armory tonight. More than 800 individual athletes will appear in a program of 23 events, including 15 relays.

Lloyd B. Hahn, of Boston, America's premier middle distance runner, is favorite in the Brooklyn college thousand, feature event of the meet, although the stiffest kind of opposition is expected from Leo Larabee, Chicago A. A., who won the event in 1925 from a great field that included Hahn, John Carney, a dark horse from Georgetown university, and others.

Karl Wildermuth, Georgetown university crack, is the headliner in the Olympic sprint series at 100 meters, 75 yards and 100 yards, in which he will be opposed by the best sprinters in the country.

Jimmy Burgess, Oliver Proudlock, Joe Tierney and Vincent Lally are among those entered in a special 600-yard race.

The best athletes of Princeton, Georgetown, Boston, Holy Cross, New York university, Lafayette, Columbia, Fordham, Rutgers, Manhattan and St. Johns will appear in three college relays or individual contests.

Pusey Wins Point Race With Wilson

Scores 105 Markers for Elks as Carl Gets 103.

Five points and two points, respectively over and beyond the century mark, Tommy Pusey and Carl Wilson, the Elks' "pony express," qualify as the boss scorers of the local county amateur league entry as the first half of the season comes to a close, which is logical in view of their places on the firing line.

By virtue of his two additional markers, or a total of 105, Pusey stands out as the premier point producer and Wilson, his running mate, is right on his heels with 103.

Pusey and Wilson are two of the four members of the squad who played in every game, Joe Canne, center, and Bus Crawford, guard, being the other pair. Next to this quarter in games played is "Chuck" McConville, guard, who figured in eight of the 10 engagements.

Captain Smith Anderson, guard, took part in only five. Joe Canne was third in line in scoring with a total of 88 points.

Pusey and Wilson each delivered 40 field goals to the Elks' case and 13 and 11 fouls, respectively. Canne caged the leather 39 times from scrimmage and 10 times from the free line.

As a team the Antlers scored 372 points to their opponents' 283, their biggest, 53, being registered at the expense of Lisbon here and their lowest score was the 17 points they made in the first game of the season in losing to Salineville.

The scoring records follow:
Player.	G.	F.G.	F.	T.P.
Pusey, f	10	46	13	105
Wilson, f	10	46	11	103

EDDIE SHEA IN LIME LIGHT AGAIN IN 10-ROUND WIN OVER FILIPINO

CHICAGO, Jan. 21.—Eddie Shea, Chicago Italian featherweight, was back on his pedestal with local boxing fans today, following his ten-round victory last night over Ignacio Fernandez, the Filipino mauler, in the windup event of Jim Muller's Coliseum show.

It was a savage fight all the way. Both boxers scored many telling blows, but Shea was the aggressor throughout and held a safe margin on points when the final gong sounded.

PUPILS ENTER ESSAY CONTEST ON "IRONSIDES"

Cash Prizes Offered by Review and Ceramic Theatre.

FRIGATE STORY
Friday, January 27, is Deadline for Entrants.

Essays in the contest dealing with the history and exploits of the frigate "Constitution," better known as "Old Ironsides" being sponsored by The East Liverpool Review and the Ceramic theatre were beginning to come in today.

Winner in the contest, which ends next Friday will receive a cash prize of $15. Second place award will be $10 and third place, $5. Five pairs of tickets to the picture, which will be shown at the Ceramic theatre during the week beginning January 30, will also be awarded.

Essays must be limited to 500 words and be in the hands of the "Old Ironsides" Contest Editor, The East Liverpool Review, not later than Friday. The contest is open to any school pupil in the district.

The photoplay production of "Old Ironsides" is based on the novel written by Laurence Stallings, depicting the story of the United States frigate, "Constitution."

Many a ship's crew from Salem and other American ports knew the horrors of disgrace and death at the hands of the barbaric pirates who sought to crush American fortunes which during the budding of the republic rested chiefly on the sea.

The introduction of this epic of the seas shows a meeting of the Continental Congress when the savagery of the sea raiders are graphically described to a small group of patriots by Thomas Jefferson. It was then and there that Congress made the appropriation for the United States Frigate "Constitution," sometimes derisively called "a barque of fir," yet destined to write one of the most thrilling pages in American Naval history.

We see what was then a mighty craft launched and we see her as she goes forth to conquer pirate forces that had so long kept the world at their mercy. We see Charles Farrrell leave his farm with a dream of honor and romance to join the crew of the "Constitution" at Salem.

Then comes the story of the master of the barque "Esther," his lady, their daughter, and the crew. The "Esther" is docked at Salem, preparing for a voyage to the China sea, with the first call at Mediterranean ports, which was not unusual in those days.

While at Salem, preparing for his voyage on the "Constitution," Farrrell falls in with Wallace Berry who is shanghaiing seamen to make the voyage aboard the "Esther." George Bancroft, master gunner of the "Constitution," visiting Salem for the purpose of seeing his sweetheart, also meets up with Berry, and shanghaiing with Marrell aboard the barque "Esther."

Thenceforth it is revealed how the "Esther" fell afoul the Barbary rovers. Confident that the "Constitution" had preceded him to the Mediterranean, the master of the "Esther," fearless and foolhardy sails directly into their clutches and with the entire crew as well as his wife and daughter is captured and made prisoner, the crew being shackled in chains and sent to the quarries while the master's family are held for ransom.

Aboard the "Esther" is enacted a beautiful love story with Farrrell, a novice aboard ship, adoring Esther Ralston, the master's daughter, who in turn, shows her love for the young seaman and at the same time maintains her dignity as befits the daughter of the ship master, who is monarch of all he surveys.

We see almost fatal results as Farrrell, given the wheel for the first time, is torn between the duty of keeping his eyes on the mizzen royal or looking at the face of his beloved. His desire to look at the girl finally overcomes him and as a result Farrrell is the unfortunate cause of considerable difficulty for all hands on board.

★ COMING STARS of the MOVIES ★

Ruth Taylor

To an almost unknown girl has fallen one of the biggest screen opportunities in years—a role for which many well-known stars vied eagerly—that of Lorelei Lee in "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes."

And in the midst of the frantic scramble, 20-year-old Ruth Taylor of Grand Rapids, Mich., emerged victorious. Two years ago she was an extra girl at $5 a day. Then she became a leading woman in Sennett comedies. That's Hollywood for you!

Ruth should win stardom with that role. It's hardly possible for her to miss. She's five feet two inches tall, weighs 102 pounds, has dark blue eyes and, of course, golden bobbed hair. She's a graduate of the Portland, (Oregon) high school.

reil, given the wheel for the first time, is torn between the duty of keeping his eyes on the mizzen royal or looking at the face of his beloved. His desire to look at the girl finally overcomes him and as a result Farrrell is the unfortunate cause of considerable difficulty for all hands on board.

Once in the Mediterranean, those aboard the "Esther" are quickly dealt with by the pirates. The master of the ship and his wife are held for ransom, while Esther Ralston is ordered sent to the Sultan together with the barque as personal trophies to that ruler.

The daring and valor of these sailors, however, prove too much for their pirate guards. The four men chained together escape and reach a small boat, in which they row until exhaustion overcomes them. When all are on the verge of collapse, one sailor spies the "Constitution" in all her glory coming toward Tripoli in full sail. The four escaped prisoners are picked up by the "Constitution," and Bancroft, the delinquent master gunner, is suffered to receive two hundred lashes on his bare back for having missed his ship at Boston.

When the prisoners tell their story of capture and despair, Commodore Preble makes the decision to fight the pirates virtually single handed. Then follows the historic action in which one American ship, later to be known as "Old Ironsides," mastered the Tripolitan pirates in a thrilling hand-to-hand engagement after taking the fort at Tripoli.

These battle scenes represent one of the most stirring episodes ever screened. Historically correct in every detail, we see the patriots of "Old Ironsides" with the never-say-die

DISTRICT SCHOOL TERM EXTENDED

Grant district public schools will be in session two weeks later this term than formerly. This is due to the fact that the opening scheduled for the week of last September was deferred for the above period of time by order of the county health board owing to several cases of infantile paralysis. The state law requires that time lost other than during regular sessions shall be made up at the end of the term.

REVIVAL MEETS CLOSE SUNDAY

Revival services which have been in progress for the past two weeks will come to a close Sunday night in the First Methodist Episcopal church.

Rev. John J. Hunt of Philadelphia, Pa., will preach. His subject will be "The Cleansing Blood" at the morning services, while his topic at the afternoon meeting will be "The Seven Signs of the Second Advent." His final subject in the evening will be "What Shall the End Be?" The meetings have been largely attended and many have professed conversion. The evangelist had as his topic last "Christ at Laodicea."

Judge Seeks Governorship.
Judge H. Roy Wough, of Buckhannon, has announced his candidacy for the Republican nomination for governor at the primaries to be held the latter part of May.

Spelling Bee Arranged.
Newell and Grant district school pupils will take part in the annual spelling bee which will be held in the near future. Finals in the event will be held in Wheeling.

Services Here Tomorrow.
Services will be held tomorrow at the usual hours in the various churches of the city. Pastors will occupy their respective pulpits.

Short Talks by Thoughtful Mothers.
A Wisconsin Mother says: "I find mothers very well informed on the subject of 'dope' in medicines. Few mothers now-a-days would buy a preparation that contained opiates or chloroform. A glance at the package before buying tells her this. With Foley's Honey and Tar Compound, the name tells a true story. It is quickly effective for coughs, colds, croup and throat irritations. Pure as it is sure, and worth many times its price." Carnahan's Drug Stores.

Feel Stiff and Achy?
To be Well the Kidneys Must Thoroughly Eliminate Waste Poisons From the Blood.
DOES every day find you lame, stiff and achy? Do you feel tired and drowsy—suffer nagging backache, headache and dizzy spells? Are the kidney secretions scanty and burning in passage?
Know, then, that these are often signs of improper kidney action. Sluggish kidneys allow acid poisons to remain in the blood and upset the whole system.
If your kidneys are acting sluggishly, assist them with Doan's Pills. Doan's, a stimulant diuretic, increase the secretions of the kidneys and thus aid in the elimination of waste impurities. Doan's are recommended the country over. Ask your neighbor!
